DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-6, 8-10 and 24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nepela et al.

Regarding claims 1, 24, Nepela et al., discloses a magnetoresistivity spin valve sensor with features of the claimed invention including at least one magnetic layer and plurality of related layer such as free, and space layers configured to respond to the variation of a physical quantity, be determining the magnetization change, (see for example, figure 3).

Regarding claim 2, the physical quantity can be any stress causing effect such as pressure or force, and the device has various layers, which are compressed.

Regarding claims 3-4, the coercivity of the magnetic layer are different (see claim 3).

Regarding claims 5, 8-9, the way an element of an apparatus is obtained, does not contribute to the structure of the apparatus.

Regarding claim 6, Nepela teaches the use of substrate (element 24).

Regarding claim 10, Nepela teaches a spin valve.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 11, 14-19 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nepela et al.

Regarding claim 11, Nepela et al., does not mention the application of his device to a tire, however, when all the elements of the claim is provided in a cited art, it would have been obvious for a skilled artisan at the time of the invention to modify the device for any reasonable engineering application such as a tire, because its resiliency and versatility.

Regarding claims 14-19, 21, Nepela et al., does not explicitly teach the temperature to be the physical quantity. However, since he discloses the resistance change (col. 1, line 28), it would have been obvious for a skilled artisan at the time of the invention to have a resistance change due to temperature change.

6. Claims 7, 12-13, 20, 22-23, 25-28 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
